PORT HARCOURT AND ENVIRONS

JTF Arrests Suspects over SPDC Pipeline Fire

The Joint Task Force (JTF), in the Niger Delta, last Sunday, said its operatives have arrested eight persons in connection with the recent fire outbreak at a Shell Petroleum Development Company (SDPC), pipeline in Gokana LGA of Rivers State. Spokesman of the Task Force, Lt. Col Onyema Nwachukwu, said the arrest of the eight suspects was made by troops of 146 Battalion of Sector 2 of the JTF. Nwachukwu said the troops who sighted the fire at about 1.30 am on Wednesday mobilised to the scene where they found the suspects in two tug boats. He said the suspects upon interrogation, claimed to be employees of Steve Integrated Technical Service and Sege Marine hired by Shell Petroleum Development Company to fix broken pipelines in Bodo. Troops deployed at Sanbarth also arrested two suspects who specialized in vandalising oil pipelines in Akuku Toru LGA.

Suspected Kidnappers Arrested with 18 Children

The Imo State Police Command, last weekend, nabbed a bus driver and a teacher at the border between Imo and Rivers States, conveying about 18 school children suspected to have been abducted. Investigations revealed that the pupils were allegedly abducted from Umuohie Primary School and Baptist Secondary School, Umuohie, all in Ngor Okpala LGA of Imo State. According to reports, the bus driver refused to stop when he was flagged down for routine check and this fuelled suspicion among the policemen on duty. The female teacher and the driver were already telling the police all they knew about the movement of the school children. Residents of the area have appealed to security agencies in the state to extend their surveillance to the border road, which they described as "very lonely." According to them, the road was gradually turning into a get-away route for criminals operating across the border communities.

Fulani Herdsmen Attack Enugu Community

There is tension in Uzo-Uwani LGA of Enugu State after Fulani herdsmen robbed and raped women in the area. The robbery and rape come after two residents were reported killed by the herdsmen recently, a situation that has made the residents to live in fear. A resident of the area alleged that the herdsmen had few days ago raped some young girls and middle-aged women and robbed motorists along Adani-Nsukka highway of their valuables and cash. He said but for the quick intervention of the police, the indigenes had started preparing for a showdown to chase the herdsmen out of the area. In quick response to the development, the Area Commander, Nsukka Police Area Command, Rose-Armson Haladu, mobilised forces and fortified the area. The Chairman of the LGA, Mr. Cornel Onwubuya, lamented that the herdsmen had been the problem of Adani community for a very long time.

Girl Found Dead at Abia Block Industry

A 16-year-old girl, hawking groundnuts around Eziukwu road in Aba, was found dead last weekend at the premises of a block industry in Aba, Abia State. Her remains were reportedly dumped at a corner of the industry naked, while her tray of groundnuts was kept on top of a nearby platform. The Police Area Commander in charge of Aba Area Command, ACP Rabi Dayi, described the incident as unfortunate. He assured that the police were on top of the situation and would, with time, ascertain the cause of her death and the people behind it. The state Police Commissioner, Mr Usman Abubakar, said that the corpse would be subjected to autopsy, to ascertain the cause of her death.

Fire Consumes Family of Six

A family of six perished in an early morning inferno, last weekend, in Port Harcourt. Neighbours of the deceased family said that the fire started at about 2pm. According to the landlord of the house, they heard a loud explosion, which was immediately followed by balls of fire. They said three boys, a girl and their parents were those consumed in the fire. They put the ages of the children at twenty two, seventeen, nine and seven years. According to a source, two other daughters of the deceased parents were not at home when the incident occurred. Rivers State Police Public Relations Officer (PPRO), Angela Agabe, who confirmed the incident, said she was still awaiting details.

Man, Wife Die Mysteriously in Rivers State

Tragedy struck in Okrika LGA of Rivers State, last Sunday, when a husband and his wife suddenly died under questionable circumstances. The Rivers State Police Public Relations Officer (PPRO), Angela Agabe, who confirmed the development, said the couple allegedly died after a meal. Neighbours of the deceased said the couple probably died from food poison. Another possible angle to the ugly development is that the couple might have been strangled to death by unknown assailants. Agabe has said that the last meal the couples had before their death had been taken for analysis, adding that the Police was investigating the incident.

Bank Manager Arrested for Robbery

An Operations Manager of a bank in Agbor, Delta State has been arrested by the police for allegedly conniving with an armed robbery gang that raided the bank, last weekend. The gang succeeded in carting away millions of naira in both local and foreign currencies, penultimate Friday, while some bank customers and passers-by were wounded in the process. Police spokesman, Lucky Uyabeme, said that the arrested manager is helping the police in its investigation, and assured that the command would not leave any stone unturned in ensuring that all the hoodlums involved are brought to book. Preliminary investigation revealed an insider connection in the bank robbery as the two keys to the strong room that were supposed to be kept by two different senior staff were left with the Operations Manager, who in turn left the strong room open. A senior staff of the bank who was supposed to be with one of the keys to the strong room purported to be sick, handed over the keys to the Operations Manager.

Edo Executes 4 Convicts, as Rights Groups Kick

Four death row prisoners in Edo State were, on Monday, executed despite their pending appeals at the Court of Appeal. President Goodluck Jonathan had recently directed state governors to sign the execution warrant of death row inmates, advising them not to shy away from same, as it was part of their duties. It was gathered that the execution took place despite the pendency of the suit by the condemned inmates, challenging their being on death row for over 16 years. They had also asked that their conviction be commuted to life imprisonment. Meanwhile, Legal Defence and Assistance Project (LEDAP) and Amnesty International, have both condemned the execution.

Edo State Attorney General and Commissioner for Justice, Mr Henry Idahagbon, in his reaction, said the executed men were convicted 15 years ago, noting that the Edo State Government had nothing to do with the execution. A fifth convict, who was ordered to be executed by firing squad, is being prepared for execution.

NDLEA Arrests 194 Suspects in Delta

The National Drugs Law Enforcement Agency (NDLEA) has arrested 194 drug suspects and confiscated 23.6 kilogrammes of cannabis and other drugs in nine months in Delta. The State Commandant of the NDLEA, Sumaila Ethan, added that out of those arrested were 169 males and 25 females. According to him, the women are mainly involved in the sales of the substances. He said the command in a single operation intercepted and seized 17 tonnes of cannabis concealed in a fuel tanker transported to the state as fuel. Ethan said that apart from cultivating cannabis, the state also served as store for cannabis brought in from the neighbouring Edo and Ondo states. Ethan said the command secured 30 convictions within the nine months, while other cases were still pending in various courts. He said that the command also counselled and got 12 clients integrated back to the society, while other three clients were presently undergoing counselling within the command.

Bridegroom, 3 Others Die in Edo Auto Crash

A bridegroom and three of his relations have been reportedly killed in a motor accident along the Benin-Auchi highway at Iruokpen in Esan West LGA of Edo State. According to an eye witness, the groom, his grand-mother, uncle and uncle's wife were said to be travelling to Uromi, Esan North East LGA for the wedding introduction when the accident occurred. Their vehicle was said to have had head-on collision with a heavy duty truck conveying sand. Head of Operations, Iruokpen Unit Command of the Federal Road Safety Commission (FRSC), John Omokandugba, attributed the crash to dangerous over-taking. He confirmed that four persons who were occupants of the bridegroom's vehicle, died in the accident.

Customs Hands over Killer Officer to Police

The Nigeria Customs Service, Ogun State Command, has handed over its officer, who allegedly killed a 45-year-old woman, Fausat Oyede, to the Police for further investigation. The state Comptroller, Ade Dosunmu lamented the incident, describing it as unfortunate. He said it became expedient on the command to hand over the officer to the Police after it had conducted an orderly room trial on him. The incident, according to findings, sparked off reactions from the residents who reportedly chased the Custom officers away from the area, before the timely intervention of the Police brought the situation under control. Dosunmu, flanked by members of the immediate family of the deceased, explained that the killer officer while on patrol, penultimate Thursday, shot at a vehicle conveying the deceased and other passengers, claiming that the vehicle was laden with contraband.

20 Robbers Invade Ogun, Kill Six

Armed robbers, numbering about 20, invaded the Ifo community in Ifo LGA of Ogun State and killed six people including five operatives of the Ogun State Vigilante Service, last Saturday. It was learnt that the robbers were members of a gang that specialized in robbing banks and allied institutions. The robbers, who allegedly operated in an unmarked lorry, entered a filling station and shot the five men of the Vigilante Service guarding the place. One of the petrol station attendants was also killed. The robbers were reportedly said to have engaged men of the State Anti-Robbery Squad (SARS) in a gun duel before they escaped. The Ogun State Police Public Relations Officer (PPRO), Muyiwa Adejobi, confirmed the incident, saying that only two persons were killed.

Explosion as Vandals Rupture NNPC Pipeline in Lagos

There was an explosion in Lagos on Wednesday after vandals ruptured an oil pipeline belonging to the Nigerian National Petroleum Corporation at Akinbo Island. It was learnt that the culprits came to the jetty in three barges and canoes and ruptured the splash zone of the pipeline and siphoned thousands of litres of petrol before the explosion. The Deputy Manager, Pipelines and Product Marketing Company, Atlas Cove, Banjo Olajide, said he could not say the quantity of petrol lost to the fire. He said the agency had built watchtowers and police posts at the black spots near the pipelines' right of way. Olajide said Nigerian Army engineers had begun the rehabilitation of the pipelines' right of way from Atlas Cove and the area was not difficult for security agents to patrol. Olajide said although oil distribution had been shut down temporarily until the affected pipelines were repaired, the incident would not lead to fuel scarcity.

Man Arrested for Raping and Posting Girl's Nude Photos on Internet

The Lagos State Police Command has arrested a 22-year-old man, Babajide Bashorun, for allegedly kidnapping a female undergraduate of the University of Lagos, Akoka, and raping her. The police said Bashorun, a dog breeder, also took snapshot of her nudity, which he allegedly posted on the Internet. Policemen from the station subsequently arrested Bashorun. The police were also on the trail of two undergraduates of UNILAG, identified as Mayowa and Ademuyiwa, who were accused of complicity in the crime. Bashorun, who denied beating his victim, said they had been dating for a long time. The state Police Public Relations Officer, DSP Ngozi Braide, confirmed the arrest of Bashorun.

Nine Tourists Killed in Pakistan

Gunmen dressed as police killed nine foreign tourists in an unprecedented attack in the Pakistani Himalayas claimed by the Taliban. The attackers struck late Saturday at the foot of one of the world's highest mountains, killing climbers at a base camp in the far-flung north not previously associated with violence or Islamist militancy. Officials said two Chinese, one American, one Nepali, a number of Ukrainians and one Pakistani were among those killed while one Chinese national survived the attack, which comes just weeks after a new government took office. Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif condemned "these inhuman and cruel acts", ordered a thorough investigation and called for the culprits to be brought to justice. A spokesman for Pakistan's main umbrella Taliban faction claimed responsibility.

Eight Soldiers Killed in India's Kashmir

Eight soldiers were killed and six others injured in rebel attacks in India's Jammu and Kashmir state, an army spokesman said on Monday. The attack is seen as part of escalating violence ahead of Prime Minister Manmohan Singh's visit to the state. Militants have escalated attacks on security forces since March this year, killing 27 security men so far, with Monday's the deadliest so far. The security incidents follow protests in February when India hanged Mohammad Afzal Guru for an attack on parliament in 2001. Guru was convicted of helping organise arms for the gunmen who mounted the attack and finding a place for them to stay. He always maintained his innocence. Militant group Hizbul Mujahideen claimed responsibility for the ambush and warned of more such attacks. Kashmir is divided between India and Pakistan, both of which claim the region and rule it in part.

Lebanese Soldiers Killed in Clashes Caused by Syrian War

Lebanese soldiers have been trying to quell sectarian unrest caused by the Syrian war. At least six Lebanese soldiers have been killed in clashes with Sunni militants in the port city of Sidon. The army said fighting broke out after supporters of a radical Sunni cleric opened fire on a checkpoint. It said three officers were among the dead and several other soldiers were wounded. Sectarian tensions in Lebanon have risen since the country's Shia movement Hezbollah backed Syria's government in the civil war there. The army blamed the violence on supporters of hard-line Sunni cleric Sheikh Ahmad al-Assir. People in the worst affected areas - Abra and Hilaliya - called on the authorities to move them to safer places.

Brazil Protesters Clash with Police, as President Pledges Reforms

Brazilian protesters have clashed with police outside the stadium. An estimated 50,000 anti-government demonstrators marched towards the Mineirao Stadium in Belo Horizonte. Police set up a ring of steel in a mile radius around the stadium and defended their barricades with tear gas and rubber bullets. A dense fog of acrid gas enveloped the protesters as they responded by lobbing gas canisters and rocks back at police and several large fires were ignited close to the police line. The wave of protests that have hit Brazil began over a hike in transport fares but it has evolved into anger at high taxes, poor public services, government corruption and spending on the World Cup. On Tuesday Brazil's President Dilma Rousseff met with protest leaders and State Governors. She promised reforms including £17bn of investment for the transport system. Lower Congress also voted to drop a controversial measure that would have made it more difficult to prosecute officials. Congress also approved a bill earmarking oil revenues for improving education and health care.

Boston Bombing Suspect Indicted

Boston Marathon bombing suspect, Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, has been indicted on charges of killing four people and using a weapon of mass destruction. The 19-year-old faces 30 charges linked to the 15 April blasts, which killed three and injured more than 260 others. A fourth victim, a policeman, was shot dead by him and his brother during the hunt for them. Seventeen charges could bring life in prison or even the death penalty, US prosecutors said. Dzhokhar Tsarnaev's brother, 26-year-old Tamerlan, was killed in a shoot-out with police days after the twin blasts. The explosives were described as pressure-cooker bombs, packed with shrapnel. Dzhokhar Tsarnaev was injured in that gun battle and has been held in a prison hospital near Boston since his capture on 19 April. The brothers are from a family of ethnic Chechen Muslims from Russia and had been living in the US for about a decade.

A 75-year-old man has been arrested after a home-made bomb was left near a mosque in Walsall. About 150 people were evacuated from homes near the mosque in Rutter Street after bomb disposal experts were called to the scene, penultimate Saturday evening. Neighbours described hearing a bang on Friday but it was only when a member of the public took the device inside the Aisha Mosque that police were called. The man was arrested at his home in Walsall on Thursday afternoon. He was detained on suspicion of causing an explosion likely to endanger life or damage property, West Midlands Police said.

Rudd Sworn in as New Australian PM, as Gillard Steps Down from Politics

Kevin Rudd has been sworn in as prime minister of Australia, a day after he ousted Julia Gillard as leader of the Labour Party. Rudd took the oath at Government House in front of Governor-General Quentin Bryce. He then addressed parliament briefly, paying tribute to Ms Gillard, who is stepping down from politics. The leadership change comes ahead of an election scheduled for 14 September, which polls suggest Labour will lose. Rudd returned to lead Australia's government three years and three days after he was toppled in a similar Labour leadership contest by Ms Gillard, then his deputy. He secured 57 votes to Ms Gillard's 45 in Wednesday's vote, which followed months of speculation and bitter infighting over who should lead Labour into the forthcoming election.
