A man was arrested after a 11-year-old girl and a 34-year-old woman were stabbed in Leicester Square, London, according to the Metropolitan Police.

The force said that the two victims were taken to hospital, but it was not possible to provide details about the severity of their injuries. The man is in custody and is suspected to be the only suspect.

In a statement, the force said: "The police are at the scene of a stabbing in Leicester Square. A man was arrested and is in custody."

"We believe there will be no more suspects. Two victims, a 11-year-old girl and a 34-year-old woman, were taken to hospital and we are updating on their conditions."

In this initial stage, the incident is not believed to be related to terrorism, according to the Guardian.

A police barrier was placed around the two entrances of the TWG Tea shop in Leicester Square. The barrier is next to the Lego store and in front of the M&M store, and families and tourists are still forming queues for each of them. At least six police officers are on site.

A spokesman for the London ambulance service said that an adult and a child were taken to a major trauma center.

"We were called at 11.36 on Tuesday, 12 August, for reports of a stabbing in Leicester Square."

"We sent resources to the scene, including an ambulance, an advanced paramedic and a tactical response officer. We also sent members of our tactical response unit."

"We took a child and an adult to the scene and we took them to a major trauma center."
